Creating a School in a South African Township

by Jules Curtis

In 2007, statistics showed there were 200,000 AIDS orphans in South Africa. The educated guesstimate anticipated there would be over 3.4 million by the end of 2012.

In light of this atrocious situation, Nomawethu Tunce and Lindiwe Mfeketho decided it was time to take action and make a difference in their community. Being mothers themselves, they had an overwhelming need and urge to help the children they saw suffering all around them.

After much hard work, scrimping and saving, the ladies managed to raise R5000 (about £250) to build a tin Wendy-house, and soon the project was born. Intyatyambo (which means “the flowers” in isiXhosa) was officially registered in June of 2006 and soon they had 32 children coming for love, attention and day care each day.

Whilst living in Horsington, I visited Cape Town and, by chance, was approached by the ladies and asked for money to support the children. I drove out to Khayelitsha, south Cape Town, to see for myself what the ladies were trying to achieve. What I found changed my life.

The 32 children were asked to say “Grace” for a meal they couldn’t afford to feed them. There was a little girl of 18 months gumming on barbed wire and they all slept on the hard floor with no blankets to keep them warm. I just couldn’t leave. For the next 3½ months I went out to Khayelitsha every day to help look after the children and try to ensure they got good food, some education and started to tell everyone I could about the work these incredible ladies were doing.

Word spread and we soon had a few sponsors helping us out sporadically, with food and general running costs. At the time the children were fed three meals a day for R2.65 (13p) per day – now that’s what you call budgeting!

After meeting a lady from Africade Productions, we were chosen to feature as a pit-stop during the semi-final episode of “Amazing Race – Asia”. The show asked to paint the outside of Nomawethu’s house as the challenge for the contestants, which we readily agreed to. As a result, the crew’s sponsors made a generous donation to the orphanage to help us on our way which also played a part in the show.

On Friday 13th July 2007, we experienced a horrific attack by five armed men who wanted to rob the orphanage. Miraculously, not one of the ladies was badly hurt. Three days later, I went back to the UK for three months, did some fundraising and emigrated to South Africa on a permanent basis.

We tore down the tin shed and replaced it with three converted shipping containers. We were then registered as an Edu-care Centre for 24 children and we were finally a sustainable social enterprise and no longer a begging bowl charity!

Despite only being given funding for 24 children, we were asked to look after 83 and we said yes. Our facilities were far too small for this though so our next mission was to raise R2 million (£100,000) to build a new school on a plot we purchased opposite our existing project.

This new facility allows us to extend our Edu-care services to 100 children, aged three months to six years old, in the community but we were without funding until January when Social Development re-registered us in our new property.

The downstairs of the property comprises two classrooms, kitchen, laundry and office and upstairs we have two classrooms for the youngest children, a cot room for babies, a sick bay and a staffroom.

We can finally give the children the play space they so desperately need. In the old property, our outside space was only 4m x 4m which was not sufficient for the children to play properly. Now they have a wonderful jungle gym that we have been donated so the children can really spread their wings and expend all that spirited energy.

A vegetable garden at the back of the new property will mean we will be able to grow fresh, healthy produce to supplement the children's diets and we can use it as a teaching tool about where food comes from and the importance of eating healthily.

We filmed the whole building process from ground breaking to completion and are having a video made.

If you want to get involved, you can do so by donating at www.icpkids.org.za or directly into the following bank account:

Bank: Lloyds TSB
Branch: Wincanton
Account No: 2866 8868

With your help, we really can turn this incredible dream into a beautiful reality – a place for our special children to really learn what childhood is all about.

“Horsington Open” Charity Golf Day now in its 3rd year

The third “Horsington Open” will be played at Henstridge Golf Club on Friday October 23rd 2015, generously sponsored and supported by the parish’s two pubs – The Half Moon and the White Horse.

The 9-hole charity competition is in aid of local charities, and is open to all comers. Ladies and non-handicappers are welcome. Entry is just £15 per player, including green fees. It’s a great opportunity for friends and neighbours to get together for a fun day of friendly competition.

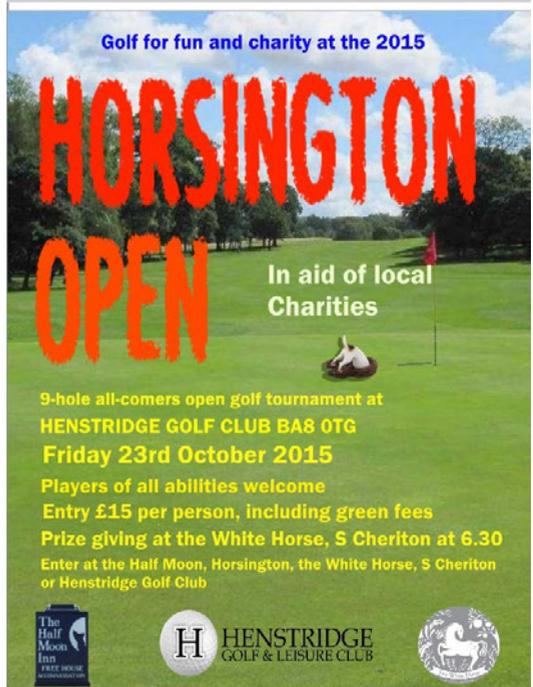

The Prize (as befits an “Open”) is a claret jug, plus many other prizes generously donated by local businesses and suppliers to Horsington’s Half Moon and South Cheriton’s White Horse pub.

The competition tees off just after 10am. The prize giving will be held in the White Horse at 6.30pm, when there will also be a charity raffle.

Entry forms and further information can be obtained from the Half Moon, the White Horse, Henstridge Golf Club, or downloaded from the Horsington Blog. (www.horsington.co.uk/blog). The competition is organised by Horsington’s Richard Gaunt, with the help of George Wagland and Phil Bennett.

Henstridge Golf Club is close to Henstridge Airfield, a ten-minute drive from Horsington.

St John's Church Horsington

From the Rector, Greetings.

We're doing Harvest differently this year. We've always celebrated Harvest Festival – but it has been in the morning replacing whatever the 'normal' Service would have been. This year we are having our Harvest Thanksgiving Service in the evening – at 6.30pm on Sunday, 27th September. It will follow a traditional Evensong pattern and have traditional Harvest hymns. We hope you'll come and join us for this celebration.

We are very pleased that Rob Walrond will be our guest speaker. As well as being a working farmer, Rob is the Diocesan Rural Life Adviser. He is more than aware of the joys and trials of agricultural life. We will be offering refreshments after the Service, which will give you a chance to talk to Rob if you'd like to.

By the time you are reading this, the new Leader of the Labour Party will have been chosen. If the bookies are correct Jeremy Corbyn will be at the helm to the joy of some, and the despair of others.

People's confidence in politics and politicians was severely dented by the 'expenses scandal.' We had the right to expect a higher level of integrity from those who were elected to high office. The electoral process by which Labour has chosen their new leader raises huge questions. They took the brave/foolish decision (?) to allow folk to sign up to vote for the new leader. People signing up had to declare their support for Labour and its principles. There is clear evidence that folk who did not support the Labour Party infiltrated the process. So much for integrity in our national political life. Perhaps we get the politicians we deserve!

Jean Handy by Adrian Pratt

On 14th August friends from far and wide filled St John's Church in Horsington for the funeral of Jean Handy who died on 6th August aged 76. Although she had only lived in Horsington for 8 years, Jean made a huge impact by involving herself with great energy in a wide range of local activities among which were service on the parish church council and deanery synod, Chair of the North Cheriton Gardening Club and Horsington WI and tireless fund-raising for many charities.

Born in Yorkshire and brought up in the finest traditions of plain speaking, an endearing quality she was never to lose, she ventured south to train at Goldsmith's College as a primary school teacher where she met John, a fellow student, whom she married. Teaching posts took them to schools in London, Northampton and Sussex and finally to Stevenage where they worked in separate schools. Both were active members of the National Union of Teachers; when the teachers went on strike, John would drop Jean off at the picket line at her school before driving through the picket line at his own school. Being a headteacher, he couldn't strike himself!

Tragically John died suddenly in 1983 leaving Jean with two lively teenagers, Joss and Jonathan. It was a savage blow but Jean took life by the scruff of the neck and applied for her own headships. Within a year the family moved to Okeford Fitzpaine in north Dorset where Jean worked first in Blandford and subsequently in Wyke Regis until her retirement in 2001.

Jean was enormously kind, generous and was blessed with a strong faith but her Yorkshire upbringing meant that she would willingly challenge things that didn't make sense and she had no time for sentimental piety. She was one of life's 'Doers' and could well have been the inspiration for the proverb "If you want something done then ask a busy person". Despite her forthrightness, she had an infectious sense of humour and was always able to laugh at herself; it is no wonder that she had so many friends.

She touched many lives whether at 'Tea and Chat' or when arranging a children's area in the church or when she organised the 'Race Nights' jointly with the school PTFA in the Village Hall to raise funds. She will be missed but, just to have known her, was a rare privilege.

At the risk of sounding irreverent, it is hard not to imagine Jean using her Yorkshire charm on the good Lord himself. It would be no surprise if the rain that fell throughout her funeral service was a little touch of her mischief; a mild soaking notwithstanding, she will be remembered for the good friend that she was.

(With grateful thanks to the Reverend Canon Dr Michael Brierley whose touching eulogy for Jean was the source and inspiration for this obituary).

Some trivia for the day:

'A SHOT OF WHISKEY'

In the old west a .45 cartridge for a six-gun cost 12 cents, so did a glass of whiskey. If a cowhand was low on cash he would often give the bartender a cartridge in exchange for a drink. This became known as a "shot" of whiskey.

The Remembrance Image Project

by Isobel Wood

100 years after the First World War, an excellent talk on the importance of meaningful remembrance was given by Simon Gregor. Simon is a freelance photographer and the co-ordinator of a project to produce a library of creative photographs which document key battle sites, capturing some of the spirit and emotion of the memorials erected to the fallen and wounded. His talk took place on Friday 4th September in Horsington church.

Much has been said on this topic during the last year or so, but Simon spoke with authority and a great sense of respect for his subject. Focusing on the war on the Western Front in France and Belgium where there was such a huge loss of life on both sides, he showed us some very moving images; among others, humble streets where the fighting had first broken out even before war was officially declared, hillside trenches where the warring sides were just yards from each other and impressive architecture such as the Menin Gate bearing the names of 54,890 soldiers whose bodies were never found – but "Known unto God", as the inscription has it. An image of a Mons street showing a memorial marking the first major engagement of the war in August 1914 only a hundred yards or so from one marking the last major engagement 50 months later, was particularly effective. There were many remarkable stories and anecdotes behind the pictures – and the taking of the pictures – which we were fascinated to hear.

Simon hopes that these images will promote a greater understanding of the war and that people will be encouraged to visit the sites in those countries as well as local war memorials, in order to take and share their own photographs. The project will work best if it provokes the widest possible thought and debate.
